Networking for Rural Communities

Wisconsin Rural Partners is a network of community residents, leaders, agencies and organizations who want to improve the effectiveness of leadership and quality of life in rural communities.

Partners work together to develop educational and informational programs that promote community leadership development, share resources and information, and raise awareness about rural issues.

Partners include state and federal agency employees, representatives of local and tribal governments and agencies, non-profit organization representatives, and for-profit businesses and organizations. This diverse network offers a wealth and variety of contacts with people who all have an interest in maintaining a vital rural Wisconsin.

To join our active network, see the membership form on the flip side.

Membership in Wisconsin Rural Partners means becoming part of an active volunteer network. Members are also known as “partners.”

Working together, partners develop and implement events, programs and services. WRP helps people develop their skills and talents to lead Wisconsin’s rural communities into the future. And we have fun!

Regular partnership activities include:

- ◆ Conferences, summits, workshops and forums
- ◆ Networking with a wide variety of agencies and organizations
- ◆ Awards and recognition programs
- ◆ Leadership training and education
- ◆ Online resource directory and web site
- ◆ National Rural Development Partnership participation
